The High School Season is Here!

By MARK WOODWORTH
EDITOR/THE BASEBALL COLLEGIAN

Nevada started their high school baseball season on Jan. 27, and Maine starts on April 17, but throughout the whole spring, it is an exciting time to be a high school baseball player and coach.

While everyone spends so much time talking about travel baseball and college recruiting, let's not forget that there is nothing like playing with your friends, some whom you've known all your life, and representing your school and representing your town in front of classmates and your family. And unlike the summer, teamwork is everything, as the games actually matter, the score matters, and how the team does is more important than the individual.

Good luck to all the coaches and players as they get to experience the amazing thing we call high school baseball!

Slumps and Perfection

By LOREN FOXX
EDITOR/THE BASEBALL COLLEGIAN

One thing that always happens in baseball is slumps. It could be a slump hitting, or it could be baserunning where you're just not locked in. It's not an easy game, and it's certainly not easy in a 20-game high school season, and it's not an easy game over 162 games in Major League Baseball. And we all get caught up in looking back and feeling down in the dumps, particularly if you start the season poorly. The Red Sox had a player start the season 0-for-19. Every time you come up to bat, you're seeing the scoreboard with those three zeroes on it. And that's at the major league level in front of 30,000 people. Even though he's a fan favorite, even though they were chanting his name, I have to imagine there's a lot of self-doubt that accompanies that.

I see that with high school players who start off the season slowly, and they might draw a walk, and I hear them from the first-base coaches box, "I'm still hitless." You can't think like that. You have to think that perfection is logical to the point that you can actually attain it. And the point is, one at-bat at a time, and one pitch at a time, whether you're pitching or hitting or playing the field, it's always one thing at a time.

There is a great book from the 1980's called Men at Work by the columnist George Will. It focuses on some legendary baseball players like Tony Gwynn, and Orel Hershisier, who had just had a 59-inning scoreless streak. One of his catchers, Rick Dempsey, says, "There are pitchers, who when you score a run off them, you can see it ruin their perfect day, and they lose their competitive edge, then the dam breaks and they give up six or seven runs."

We see it when a guy balks in a run, walks in a run, or hits a batter with two strikes. Can he mentally recover from that blemish on the record? If I had a dollar for every time I see a pitcher walk in a run or balk in a run, and that not be

The third issue of The Baseball Collegian is here! And as high school seasons begins, and the college season reaches the midway point, it is the hope that the values of the game are able to be remembered throughout both the wins and the losses.

These values are not all those diatribes about character and turning boys into men. Instead, the values are the skills of focus amidst distractions; incredible work ethic; perseverance when the going gets tough; and resiliency when everything is failing.

Best of luck in the pursuit of these skills through the medium of this great game!

Baseball in America is Thriving!

The continually predicted demise of baseball is simply untrue. Baseball (and softball) is growing and thriving in America, a testament to the power of the game, as well as the hard work of millions of kids and adults and coaches and parents.

The Sport and Fitness Industry Association (SFIA) released its 2025 Topline Participation Report, and reported some amazing numbers, particularly in youth baseball.

Casual Baseball participation has increased 123% since 2014.

Baseball and softball combined are the most-participated team sports among kids age 6-12 over the past five years.

Baseball among 6-17 year-olds has the highest mark on record at 8.49 million participants- an increase of 27% since 2014.

There are 26.5 million participants in baseball and softball in the United States - an increase of 17% since 2014.

The Competitors Brain

the only run they give up in that inning, I'd have more than a few bucks piled up.

Orel Hershiser, when he goes to the mound in the first inning, was asked what he was planning to do. "I'm planning to pitch a perfect game", he replied. "If they get a hit, then I am throwing a one-hitter. If they get a walk, it's my last walk. I deal with perfection to the point that it is logical to conceive it. History is history, the future is perfect."

There is a conversation with Pete Rose back when he was trying to set the all-time hit record. He was 14 hits away and 42-years-old and they asked him how many at-bats he needed to pass Ty Cobb, and he said, "Fourteen." In his mind, he could theoretically be perfect and get a hit every time at bat. And so can you.

Tucson, Arizona

Most of the baseball news in Arizona in March comes from the Phoenix area where 15 major league teams set-up for spring training, but 90 minutes south in Tucson, there is a wonderful world of college baseball happening. From packed houses at University of Arizona games, to one of the most beautiful fields in the country, to a month-long small-college tournament with teams from around the country, Tucson in March with its perfect weather is a great place for college baseball.

Hi Corbett Field

The University of Arizona plays its games off-campus at legendary Hi Corbett Field. With the Terry Francona Hitting Center looming in right, and high grandstands that are filled nightly, it is a wonderful and easy place to watch a game.

Kino Sports Complex

The Tucson Invitational Games welcomes small college teams from NAIA and Division III to Tucson every year to play on their well-manicured fields with mountains in view at every turn. A former spring training complex featuring six fields and one stadium, games take place in March morning to night with top teams from around the country on their annual spring trip.

West Campus Aztec Baseball Field

Pima Community College in Tucson has the fortune of playing on a gorgeous field with the Santa Catalina mountain range sprawling in the background. A great secret in the baseball world, this field is a gem of a place to play at and watch a game.

Buies Creek, North Carolina

Jim Perry Stadium

Campbell College plays at a wonderful small stadium in the center of campus. Named after alum Jim Perry of the Jim and Gaylord Perry legendary pitching family, the Camels have a perfect small-town setting for a big-time program.

Wilmington, North Carolina

Brooks Field

UNC-Wilmington plays their games at Brooks Field on the main winding road that goes through campus. Recently renovated with the addition of turf, it is a nice place to watch a game, particularly in the outfield on the grass hill where you can see all the action.

Austin, Texas

UFCU Disch-Falk Field

While the University of Texas football stadium looms over the center of Austin, just across the highway is their legendary baseball stadium. The home of an incredible history of great players and coaches, it is clear that the Longhorns take their baseball seriously.

THE BASEBALL COLLEGIAN PITCHING PROJECT

A Non-Partisan Resource on Pitching

THE INTENT OF THE BASEBALL COLLEGIAN PITCHING PROJECT is to inform coaches and players and parents of some of the many theories on being a successful pitcher.

Most every concept has advocates with very strong opinions on either side of the argument. Too often, a theory is chosen based on popularity, conventional wisdom, or because someone famous does it that way, as opposed to one's own analysis. With so many contradicting theories, it is essential to have an understanding of all of the possible options before deciding which one to commit to.

These pitching theories are presented without judgment, without confirmation bias, with no preconceptions, and without dogma or commercialism. In turn, the strong hope is that people are inspired to do the work to make up their own mind based on as much information as possible – and in turn, do what makes most sense to them.

Last month, the discussion was about the cause of arm injuries. This month, the discussion turns to staying healthier.

Q. Who should call the pitches?

General Belief:

- Catcher – Wayne Graham, former Rice coach

“I grew up believing that educating the catcher on how to call a game was extremely important, and I have done this for the past 32 years with pretty good success,” (baseballnews.com)

- Catcher – Mike Matheny – former MLB catcher

“It really shouldn't have been a surprise to me as an overwhelming percentage of youth coaches have decided to call the game for their young catchers. I believe this to be a mistake. If the man sitting on the bucket knows which pitch is the right pitch, then why doesn't he teach the catcher how to do it? It may take some time, and some (a lot) of patience, and it may actually cost the team a couple of wins (heaven forbid) but it will give these aspiring players the foundation of what it really means to wear the “tools of intelligence.” (mikematheny.com)

PITCHING PROJECT

Other Philosophies:

- Coach – Paul Mainieri, Georgia/former LSU coach

“How many college football coaches are letting their quarterbacks call the plays?” said Mainieri, knowing the answer is not many. “Why? Because the coaches understand they have a greater knowledge.” (al.com)

- Coach – Mitch Gaspard, former Alabama coach

“As a coach, if a mistake is made with a pitch, I would much rather it be on one of our coaches having called that pitch than a 19-year-old catcher being questioned on a pitch call,” he said. “Coaches also feel they're putting their team in a higher percentage to succeed.” (al.com)

- Coach suggestion – Scott Brown – former Vanderbilt pitching coach

In our system I'm basically suggesting a pitch, then our catcher is seconding it, and the pitcher commits to it - we don't have any “Well, I didn't want to throw that.” Our guys can shake off whenever they want. (insidepitchonline.com)

There's a difference between losing and being defeated

"Being defeated is often a temporary condition. Giving up is what makes it permanent."

-- Marilyn vos Savant

I once told a Major League pitcher that if I just watched him pitch without looking at the scoreboard, I would never know how many runs he had given up. Regardless of how the game was going for him, he looked exactly the same on the mound. You could not tell after he threw a pitch whether he was happy with it or not.

When I mentioned this to him he explained that he never wanted the hitter to see him frustrated. Not only was he not going to give the hitter the satisfaction of seeing him upset, he also did not want the hitter to know that the pitch he had just thrown was a mistake.

Better to leave the hitter wondering whether he meant to throw that pitch in that spot.

In life, if you can absorb a setback, find the lesson in it, find the good in it, regroup, smile and continue to move forward so you become an unstoppable force.
